Baltimore Scholars Program

a full-tuition scholarship for Baltimore City public school students applying for freshman admission to Johns Hopkins

JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY

Q. What is a Baltimore Scholar?

A. You've known about Johns Hopkins University for years. But have you considered applying for admission? Maybe your answer should be YES! Thanks to a new scholarship program, Baltimore Scholars—incoming freshmen who have attended a Baltimore city public high school for the last three years—are eligible for free tuition. Scholarships are available to attend undergraduate programs at the Krieger

School of Arts & Sciences, the Whiting School of Engineering, the School of Nursing, the School of Professional Studies in Business & Education, and the Peabody Conservatory.

If you are accepted as a Baltimore Scholar, you don't just get in. You also get guidance. That's because Baltimore Scholars are paired with a faculty adviser, as well as professional academic advisers. These faculty members and administrators help students with social, academic, and personal advising needs. Political science professor Matthew Crenson, himself a graduate of Baltimore public schools, serves as primary adviser and plans programs to help you make the most out of your Hopkins learning experience.

Who is eligible?

The Baltimore Scholars program is open to U.S. citizens or permanent residents who have lived with a custodial parent in Baltimore City for the last three years and who have been enrolled in a public high school in the city for 10th, 11th, and 12th grades. Prospective Baltimore Scholars must apply for admission as freshmen and be offered admission to Johns Hopkins University. Scholarships are available to full-time candidates for first bachelor's degrees. Baltimore Scholars who meet admission criteria can transfer between divisions of the university and keep their scholarships. Tuition support continues as long as a student maintains at least a 2.0 GPA, completes at least 12 credits per semester, and remains in good standing.

All tuition—paid for four years. Baltimore Scholars receive a scholarship that covers full tuition for four academic years of undergraduate study leading to a bachelor's degree. Depending on financial need, applicants may also be eligible for additional financial support to cover other educational and living expenses, as determined by the regular financial aid application process.

How do I apply?

When you apply to Hopkins you also apply to the Baltimore Scholars Program; no additional application is required. Contact the appropriate admissions office to receive an application for undergraduate admission, or go to that school's Web site to download an application. In some cases, you can apply online. Along with your application, please include any letters of recommendation specifically for this scholarship from your principal, guidance counselor, and/or teachers.
